

WHY DID THE CHICKEN CROSS THE ROAD? TO GET TO CANADA'S FAIR AND OPEN POULTRY MARKET

The United States and Canada share a trillion dollar trade and investment relationship that is fair, balanced, and mutually beneficial. The poultry sector is no exception.

ONE EGG IS SIMPLY NOT UN OEUF

Since NAFTA's enactment, U.S. poultry and egg exports to Canada have increased 209%.

- Today, Canada is the second largest market for U.S. poultry and egg exports.
- In 2016, the U.S. exported $661 million in poultry and eggs to Canada.
- In fact, the U.S. has a $246 million trade surplus in poultry and eggs with Canada.
- Canadians, per capita, buy more poultry and eggs from the U.S. than Mexican consumers.

A CHICKEN IN EVERY POT

For over twenty years, NAFTA has allowed duty-free and quota-free access for fowl meat originating from the U.S. Canada's supply management of poultry and eggs is consistent with all international trade obligations. This system is designed to create a stable domestic market for both Canadian farmers and workers.

TRILATERAL ECONOMIC GROWTH, SUNNY-SIDE UP

NAFTA supports an $85 billion agricultural relationship among the U.S., Canada, and Mexico. Our regional economy is integrated, lowering costs for consumers in all three countries to purchase high-quality and safe groceries for their families and freeing up disposable income. The U.S.–Canada relationship alone supports millions of jobs on both sides of the border in the agricultural sector and beyond.
